

How Hearing Works

Hearing is the process of receiving and understanding sound. The ear perceives and processes sounds into electrical pulses that are transmitted to the brain. The brain interprets this information as sound.

Anatomic illustration is not shown to scale